OUR GLORY AND OUR SHAME.

The Victors of That Day Are the Bosted Paupers of To-Day.

Henry Watterson in the Courier-Journal.

The disbandment of the vast armies of volunteers, who, after the fall of Richmond and the surrender of Lee and Johnson, marched in review before the President and his generals in Washington, was one of the marvels of modern history. Nothing so left its impression on the thoughtful men of Europe as the return of those trained soldiers to peaceful avocations. Not even the gathering and organizing and disciplining these grand armies so marked the distinctions and the differences which exist between the monarchies of Europe and the Great Republic, between an autocratic and a popular Government, as did the dispersion of these bodies of armed men who had learned war and had won its glories, but who, without a thought of further conquest, returned to their homes and again took up their daily duties.

The Southern soldier, worn and weary, cast down but not forsaken, conquered but not humiliated, returned to his home and found himself face to face with a struggle more desperate, more exacting, more trying than the long march or the bloody battles which ended at Appomattox. As the glory of war won by each army is to-day the common heritage of the whole people, so is the honor that came in the face of vast discouragements and under circumstances of the most trying character the old soldiers of the South built on a surer foundation a material prosperity that is fuller of hope and happiness than that which ended with the attack on Fort Sumter. As on the field of battle these men upheld the honor of the American soldier, so did each in his own way and in his own home uphold the dignity of American manhood.

This has been the boast and pride of all men and of all sections; the courage and the fortitude of the American citizen-soldier.

But this pride is now to be shaken. The men who turned back from the grand review at Washington with no thought of plunder or pillage, who with gladness returned to their civic duties, are now called again to Washington, not by the need of the nation, not by command of their leaders, not to see that no harm comes to the republic, but by sutlers, claim agents, by shirkers and deserters, to take, in the name of "patriotism," millions from the treasury to be squandered on the tramps and beggars who are not willing to work. The fame of the volunteer armies is to be dimmed by an organized raid on the treasury. Honor won by four years' faithful service is to be bartered for annual pensions which were never promised, and for which to-day there is no need, and the soldiers fallen from their high estate are to become only as an army of paupers organized by claim agents, and mustering under the flag of communism, are to threaten the demagogues and time servers in Congress until every vault in the treasury is opened to them.

This is the change of twenty years. The victors of that day are the boasted paupers of to-day; beggars or highwaymen intimidating the faithless custodians of the public funds. In this army we find none from the south. The men who surrendered then have since conquered the right to live without the forced benevolence of the people. They have fought a good fight; they have kept the faith. Twenty years ago they surrendered all but manhood; that they have kept unstained to this day, and will so keep it unto the end. Poverty or long labor or distress will not afflict them, for the pride, the self-reliance, the undaunted courage which sustained them through four years of battle have upheld them during twenty years of peace.

"The" much is taken, much abides, and the "We" are not now that strength which in old days Moved heaven and earth; that which we are, We are; One equal temper of heroic hearts Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will To strike, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

Ended by His Own Hand.

Edina, Mo., March 9.—Samuel Ennis, county clerk of this (Knox) county, and proprietor of the Ennis house, had been suffering from neuralgia and had been depressed in spirits for some days, but this morning he ate a hearty breakfast after which he went to his room and asked his wife to send him a cup of coffee. She went to the dining room and ordered the coffee and returning to the room, was horrified to find her husband struggling in the agonies of death, he having during her absence shot himself, the ball entering the right temple, ranging down and coming out near the left ear.

The dead man's family consisted of a wife, two grown daughters and a son about 6 years of age. Ennis was born in Kentucky and came to this state when a young man. He was elected sheriff, holding the office one term, after which he was elected county clerk, a position he had held for nine years.

Financial troubles is supposed to be the cause of the suicide, but no papers have been discovered to explain the matter.

Ayer's Hair Vigor stimulates the hair to a vigorous growth. It contains all that can be supplied to make the hair beautiful and abundant, removes dandruff and renders the hair flexible and glossy.

Roscoe Conkling as a Young Man.

Roscoe Conkling as a young man, was a type of manly beauty. Tall, well made with broad shoulders and compact chest and an erect carriage, he always dressed with scrupulous neatness, wearing a dark frock coat, light colored vest and trousers, with gaiters buttoned over his shoes. His eyes which are a blueish gray hue were overmounted by heavy dark auburn eyebrows, his side whiskers curled closely and his hair ran down with a sharp point into the middle of his broad, bald forehead, where it rose in a curl. Even in his younger days, as now, his language was elegant and when he spoke on the floor of the senate every word was clearly enunciated, while slow and deliberate gestures lent effect to what he said. Mr. Conkling has always had a peculiar way when speaking and especially when provoked of allowing his nostrils to quiver and lengthen into an expression of scorn, which would often lash an opponent into fury. His manner has been at times rather dictatorial towards strangers but his personal friends worship him and have never thrown off their allegiance.

A smooth complexion can be had every lady who will use Parker's Tonic. For promptly regulating the liver and the kidneys and purifying the blood, there is nothing like it, and this is the reason why it removes pimples and gives a rosy bloom to the cheeks.

A Texas Editor Rises to Explain.

The Standard wishes to correct a false impression in reference to the "firing" of the editor's wife and mother-in-law from the Methodist church. They were not put out of the building by the pastor, as some suppose, but merely had their names erased from the roll of membership. The editor is not the kind of a man to quietly submit to having his wife and her mother "fired" bodily from a church or elsewhere. He is not built that way; neither is his mother-in-law.

A strange circumstance happened at the dining table at the Hotel Harrisonville a few days since. Mr. J. H. Fewell, who boards there, is taking medicine under the advice of a physician, who advised him to drink neither coffee, tea or milk. On the day in question, Mr. Fewell was feeling better, and concluded he would try a glass of milk. It was brought and set by his plate. He hunched his dinner, feeling that he ought not to drink it, but just before leaving the table, concluded he would risk it. He reached for the glass, and just as his hand got near enough to take it, the glass fell to pieces, spilling every drop in the glass. To say Mr. Fewell was astonished, would be putting it very mildly. He will let milk alone for the present. Who can explain the mystery?—Cass Co. Democrat.

Gold Found Near Springfield.

Springfield Herald 28.

Yesterday a gentleman came into town and created quite a breeze of excitement by exhibiting to the delighted gaze of our citizens a piece of ore found on the land of Mr. Davis, a mile east of the city. It was pronounced gold by every one to whom the specimen was shown. It was taken to J. N. Webster the jeweler, for examination. He scrutinized it carefully with a glass and by various other tests and pronounced it to contain pure, virgin gold and will yield from two to three hundred dollars per ton.

The gentleman who brought in the specimen says a large amount of the ore is found on the surface of the ground. No digging has been done as it was never known until yesterday that the ore contained gold. A number of leading men from the city will go out to-morrow to make a thorough investigation. The result will be looked forward to with eager expectancy.

John Jay, late American minister to Vienna, has written an open letter to senator Evarts on the fisheries dispute, which, in view of the recent action taken by congress, is deserving of serious consideration. Mr. Jay is of the opinion that if the president applies the retaliatory legislation adopted by congress, it is not at all likely to result in a settlement of the disputed question. Mr. Jay points out that if the Canadians attempted to force the United States government into accepting their construction of the treaty of 1818, it would arouse the national pride of our people and lead them to obstinately decline to look favorably upon such a construction.

An excess of animal food and partial closing of the pores of the skin, during the winter months, causes the system to become filled with impurities. These can be removed and the blood purified and invigorated by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Price $1.

Emporia Ladies Registering.

Emporia, Kan., March 8.—Up to to-day only two ladies had registered as voters, but this morning they began making up for lost time, and at noon there were about twenty names enrolled with more coming all the time. There is considerable feeling being manifested by ladies who are opposed to the movement and who believe that a woman's place is at her home and not at the polls electioneering. Some of these ladies are strong minded enough to express their thoughts openly and to declare that they will have nothing to do with the movement.

The usual spring emigration westward, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has already begun. "It has set in somewhat earlier this year than in former years, on account of the open weather and the numerous indications of an early spring, and, as a consequence, this is now the harvest of the railroad's extending throughout the west and the southwest. At the Union depot the over flowing waiting rooms and crowded platforms indicate an increased exodus from the rising toward the setting sun."

The Philadelphia Record says: The candidates for office who fail of appointment are always noisy and malevolent; the appointees, as a rule, are satisfied, but indolent partisans. Parties are not greatly weakened by the dissatisfaction of those who fail to get office, nor greatly strengthened by the support of those who succeed. It is the people who neither hold nor want office who decide the fate of parties and whose good opinion is necessary to successful administration.

Neal Dow says the anti-liquor laws are habitually and generally disregarded in Maine, yet the legislature of that state is seeking to increase the penalties for violation, a step that will only make convictions less frequent.

A Consumptive Convict Pardoned.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 9.—Governor Marmaduke to-day granted a pardon to David Taylor, who was sentenced to the penitentiary in November, 1881, by the Jackson county criminal court for robbery in the first degree, and at the December term, 1884, of the Coles county circuit court received a further sentence for his participation in an attempted riot the prison in February, 1883, when the shops were fired and burned by revolting convicts. His term of imprisonment under these two sentences would expire in 1893. He is pardoned on the recommendation of the prison physician who says he is suffering from consumption and has not long to live.

The Epoch says: Public men of both political parties have given expression of late to impressive warnings of the danger attending the lack of active interest in politics by a large part of the American people. But the most inveterate sticker for sustained political activity must admit that there is one kind of politics which we have too much with us, that which relates to the prospect of candidates for the presidency.

Since the Atchison saloons were closed out the market has been flooded with "tonics" made of bad whisky, pure and simple, put up in unique packages which can be bought in all sizes from the small hymn book, holding a drink, to the large family Bible, holding a gallon.

Kentucky whisky must be getting very poor and not at all of its old strength and purity. Henry Watterson has invited Murphy, the temperance evangelist, to that city to lecture. Thirling of time brings many surprises, and this is one of them.

Cable roads are not popular in Philadelphia. They are too fast for the people. The inhabitants of that city love a passive deliberative condition. Anything like speed frightens them. They think there that the world will go to pieces to the tune of "old hundred."

Civil-service commissioner Edgerton and Lyman have decided to go to Chicago early in April to investigate the charge made against the Chicago collector of customs that he has forced the resignation of subordinates in order to appoint democrats to the vacancies.

Some Folks

have much difficulty in swallowing the huge old fashioned pill, but anyone can take Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," which are composed of highly concentrated vegetable extracts. For diseases of the liver and stomach, sick and bilious headache, etc., they have no equal. Their operation is attended with no discomfort whatever. They are sugar coated and put up in glass vials.

Some irreverent individual has said that the reason the Almighty is all-wise arises from the fact that he is given so much information through prayer. A prayer is an asking and not a giving of things away.

The Illinois school boy who took a good swallow from his ink bottle just to see how the mixture would taste, is now an angel. Ink is not a beverage and the too free use of it has destroyed many people who were not school children.

Every man with a vital spark has a little selfish vanity concealed about himself some where. Senator Evarts is notoriously careless about his hat, but he wears the finest boots in the Senate. They cost $25 per pair, and he keeps them shined.

Wilmington, Vt., is not much of a city but it has one sweet distinction. It is in the center of the largest maple sugar district in the world. One man there makes over 10,000 gallons every year.
